Open letter to
The Council of the European Union

Dear Sir or Madam,

we, the undersigned, declare that we have strong concerns about the publication formats used by the European Union Council's on-line video stream service at [1]. These videos are only published in a proprietary format (Microsoft Windows Media Video "WMV"), so citizens using operating systems different from Microsoft Windows or Apple's Mac OS are unable to watch those videos under assured legal conditions.

This is in stark contrast to several legal proceedings initiated by the European Union against Microsoft's near-monopolistic grip on the IT market [2]. One of the proceedings indeed targeted the separation of the operation system "Windows" from the integrated media technology which incidentally includes the WMV format. Nevertheless the European Union Council presents its publications in this format only.

Citizens using non-Microsoft operating systems trying to access European Union Council publications were confronted by a blatantly uninformed statement about the legal status of free software in your frequently asked questions section (FAQ).

Quote:

*"We cannot support Linux in a legal way.
So the answer is: No support for Linux." [3]*

This misleading justification was removed from your site on January 4, 2007, shortly after some complaints, but the issue of exclusively using proprietary formats persists.

To emphasize our concern we have started a petition at [4].

We request that publications of the European Council are offered in open formats [5]. Not only would this allow citizens of the European Union to inform themselves about the proceedings of the European Council in a legal and vendor-independent way, it would also make clear that the European Council is not promoting near-monopolies of specific companies. We are of the conviction that equal and transparent access to matters of public concern is one of the pillars of democracy and only open, non-discriminatory formats and standards can guarantee equal access. To this date, February 1st, 2007, over 17.600 citizens of the European Union have signed this petition and shown their support for this issue. Please, don't dismiss the opinion of these citizens of the European Union.

Sincerely,

the undersigned [6]
